And finally, our final two trend predictions for the food, drink and hospitality industries for 2025: the rise of fast and casual dining and the sustained importance of environmental consciousness.

Chef driven fast casual restaurants will continue to gain momentum, as they feed consumers' desires for high quality items delivered quickly and on the go. This type of casual, experiential dining appeals on many fronts to consumers of varying ages in different parts of the country looking for affordable culinary experiences.

Environmental consciousness continues to grow with consumer awareness and desire for more sustainable options. Up-cycling and waste reduction efforts are not only good for the planet but also good for business!

With huge thanks to Dame Sharon Olson, Executive Director of Culinary Visions and member of our Les Dames d'Escoffier International - Chicago Chapter for her predictions.
